Alcantara

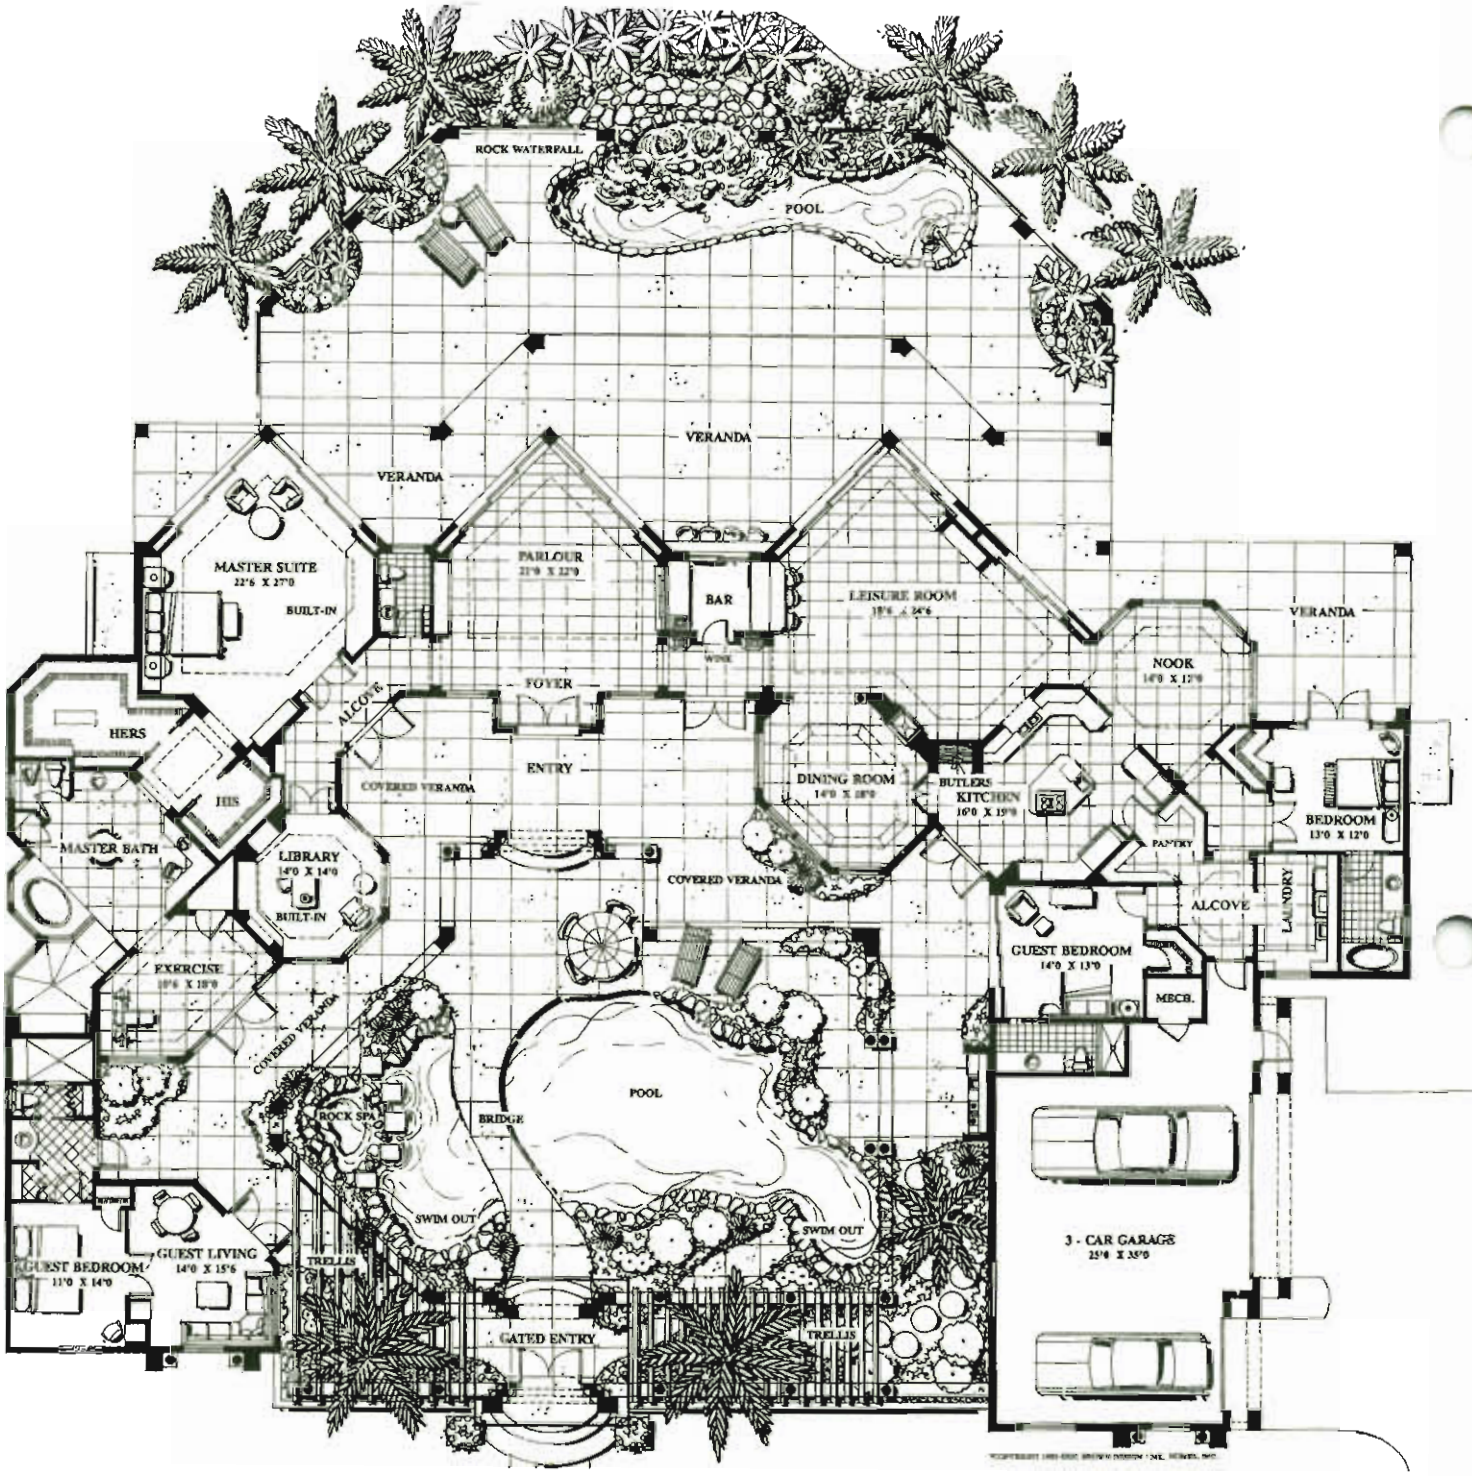

Alcantara, The National Association of Home Builders' "Aurora Award" winner, has features uncommon even in the luxury home market. From your approach to this Mediterranean designed courtyard home, you notice wrought iron, stone, and stucco at the entrance. Once inside the courtyard, an arched bridge over a large black "pebbled" pool leads to the eleven foot tall, hand carved entry door. Inside the home, looking through the beautiful parlor with its double cypress crown, stone and stained glass trim, you see a second water feature with a natural rock waterfall, stucco columns with beams, numerous planters, all within a screened enclosure, to take full advantage of the expansive view through seven pocketing glass doors! Noted for its "attention to detail," the Alcantara's use of stained cypress, one and three-quarter inch stained wood doors, beautiful granite, marble, and porcelain tiles, together with interior design features like faux finishes, beautiful built-ins, and exquisite furnishings, make this home truly a work of art.
