Chiavari, Italy
(elevation 5 meters, population 28,086)

Caught between the sea and the mountains at the confluence of three valleys and dating to prehistoric times (800 BC), this was the seat of the Riviera vicariate in 1332. With a harbor for 450 boats, this bustling town is well known for its summer tourism, its wonderful shops, and its famous "Camparina" chairs. The beautiful Piazza Nostra Signora dell 'Orto boasts a town hall, a cathedral and a bishop's palace. For traditional Ligurian specialties try the unusually named "Lord Nelson Pub" overlooking the sea. Or try the ristorante at the three-star "Monte Rosa" hotel in the medieval section.
